The attorneys for Clare Hill Downs have asked of the court an injunction to prevent the collection of $2,500 a ty for the state during the two meetings and $10,000 for the city of Louisville upon the grounds that these license fees were repaid by the gross sales tax which imposed a tax of 3 per cent on tickets sold at the gate. Nobody in the legislature except a few saw the error. There was a clerk in the capitol who, except the two clerks of the intercourse, was the sole clerk of the legislature. Of course, it is the duty of the clerk to down a system that has

What was it that Harshbarger was doing, that the legislature will not stop them from the doing of their work. I have never in the course of my career, in order to get rid of them, from what the legislature has done, and what they should be allowed to do, even Governor Jefferson

POULTRY FACTS

FOWLS LOSE HEALTH WHEN PUSHED HARD

Vitality of the Birds Must Have Consideration.

By R. S. Dearborne, North Carolina State College Poultry Department—WNU Service.

The evolution of the fowl from a jungle bird laying 15 eggs a year to the modern hen laying up to 300 eggs in the same period is a monument to poultry science.

The fowl has been transformed from a partially herbivorous bird to one which will utilize large quantities of animal protein in egg manufacture.

Unfortunately, however, the tendency of the industry has been to stress increased production without taking sufficient consideration of fowl vitality.

The question of mortality is now a major concern of the industry and much thought and investigation must be spent before the problem can be solved.

A recent study of the causes of death in 4,410 fowls showed deaths were caused by the following conditions in the percentages listed: 108 cases of the digestive tract, 15.9 per cent; intestinal parasites, 11.6 per cent; respiratory diseases, 9 per cent; tumors, 8.4 per cent; zoonotic diseases, 7 per cent; diseases of the glandular organs, 6.9 per cent; constitutional diseases, 6.5 per cent; genital diseases, 6.5 per cent; abdominal diseases, 5.4 per cent; protozoan diseases, 5.1 per cent; nervous diseases, 4 per cent; accidental deaths, 3.6 per cent; diseases of the circulatory system, 1.3 per cent, and cutaneous diseases, .5 per cent.

This study brought out the fact that much of the work of reducing mortality will fall upon the individual poultryman to use better methods of flock management and of controlling the spread of disease.

Easy to Induce Turkey Hens to Use Box Nests

Make laying coops for turkey hens with no bottom so the nest will get the moisture from the ground. Make the dimensions 4 by 4 feet and high enough with a one-slope roof, advises a writer in the Indiana Farmer's Guide. The entrance should be 14 by 14 inches. The four sides are made of building lath and nailed on just like a wall to be plastered.

Locate the coops about 100 yards from your residence in a circle some distance apart. The hens watching others, especially on bad days, will learn to use these coops. This being about far enough away so the chicken hens will not disturb the nesting by scratching a foot of place. After forming a turkey nest, place a nest egg as a turkey hen likes the looks of an egg before she sits on the nest, even the first time.

The openings in the coop are very important as peep holes, as the turkey hens always keep a sharp look-out while on the nest, and will not go into a dark place to make their nest.

Limber Neck in Chickens

Limber neck among chickens is a condition caused by poisoning which is characterized by a paralysis of the neck which makes it impossible for the chicken to raise its head from the ground. It is usually associated with putrid or spoiled meat in which poison-producing organisms are growing, or of fly maggots which have bred on such material. Treatment for this ailment is rather unsatisfactory, but 3 or 4 teaspoonfuls of castor oil, if given during the early stages, is recommended. Limber neck occurs frequently on 1st of July, during summer when dead chickens or animals are overlooked by members of the farm family and decomposition sets in. Dead animals and birds should not be buried, unless buried very deep, for maggots work their way to the top of the ground and chickens will eat them and thus get limber neck.

In the Poultry Yard

Once a pullet stops laying it takes two or three weeks to get her started again.

Hens that are fed a small amount of cod liver oil, about 2 per cent of their ration, produce eggs containing more copper and iron.

The belief that the greater number of eggs a hen lays, the poorer the quality of the eggs, is not upheld by tests.

Chickens can be made to grow faster as a result of crossing desirable strains and fast growing improves their meat.

Growing chicks require calcium as a bone-building material, obtainable in easily digested form from chick size oyster shell.

If there is any doubt about the quality of the eggs to be sold, they should be candied and graded and the under-

FARMERS' COLUMN

THE FARM AND HOME

Highly flavored feeds may produce objectionable milk and cream, especially in winter. Do not feed at milking or near milking time corn silage, green alfalfa, cabbage, turnips, kale, soy beans or sweet clover. Feed them just after milking.

Farmers who acquire or build good poultry houses will need to exercise care in ventilation and overcrowding. A 20 by 21 house contains 100 square feet of floor space, which is room for 100 hens and 10 or 12 mat birds.

Wrap the trunk of the cow's set tree from the lower branches to the ground with two or three thicknesses of news paper or old lullap that has been cut in tips about 9 inches wide. The with string and leave until the material rot away.

Temperature of water for scalding hogs: For barrel scald, 155 to 160 degrees; for tank scald, 145 to 150 degrees. A temperature above 165 degrees, for either barrel or tank, is considered too high and is liable to cause the hair to set.

Farmers in the central states who face the problem of providing an emergency hay crop for 1935 may find the solution in seedling Korean lespedeza on winter wheat or with oats early next spring, says a statement sent out by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

When company is entertained to luncheon or dinner, the meat should be simple so that the hostess may be rested and at ease. The menu should be planned so that not more than one dish will have to be prepared at the last minute, such as broiling steak, making the croquettes, or arranging the salad.

Sell To Licensed Dealers

Selling tobacco over an organized house leaf market or else to a licensed dealer, is urged by O. M. Farrington, state compliance officer for adjustment programs, at the agricultural experiment station at Lexington.

Producers are warned against indiscriminate selling to unregistered "phubooks," truckers or neighboring farmers.

"Not only will a contracting grower have difficulty in executing and selling a marketing card, but also he will be in considerable danger of complications with the Bureau of Internal Revenue, if and when he sells tobacco to a person other than a licensed dealer," says a letter sent out by Farrington.

Agents of the tobacco section of the Agriculture Adjustment Administration are stationed at markets, to fill in the allom at cards of growers and issue tax-payment warrants. Bills of sales must be presented to them at the time the sales are made, and tax-payment warrants obtained then. Otherwise the grower will be charged the 25 percent tax.

Growers must have their allotment cards with them when they sell their tobacco, or else suffer the tax penalty. Farrington has also issued a warning to growers about assigning their second benefit payment, as some farmers are said to have sold their crop and agreed to give the purchaser the second payment. The adjustment contract forbids assigning any payments or benefits.

Soak Evergreens Because of the dry fall, it is advisable to soak the ground about evergreens before freezing weather sets in. As evergreens hold their leaves all winter, they also off moisture in large quantities. Unless moisture is supplied to their roots they may suffer winter injury.

N. R. Elliot, landscape gardener at the college of agriculture, university of Kentucky, advises two or three thorough soakings of the ground about the evergreen, let 10 days or two weeks intervene between the waterings.

The Processing Tax

The foodstuffs who slaughter, his own hogs and sells or exchanges directly to consumers not more than 300 pounds of the products derived during an marketing year is not entitled to pay the processing tax. If the producer sells more than 300 pounds but not more than 1,000 pounds of pork products, from his own hogs direct to consumers he is liable for the tax only on the volume sold in excess of the 300 pound exemption. If he sells more than 1,000 pounds during any marketing year he loses his 300 pound exemption and is liable for the tax on all products derived from his hogs which he has sold. The amount of the tax is determined upon a live-weight basis, which is arrived at by using the conversion factor prescribed in the regulations. Farmers who slaughter and sell hogs not of their own raising are not entitled to the 300 pound exemption. Any farmer who processes hogs for consumption by his own family, employees, or household is exempt from the payment of tax thereupon.

Chilling Important

Comparatively little home butchering was done in Kentucky in November due to inclement, mild temperatures. Chilling of the hog carcasses is an important step in the preparation of home pork. In fact, Grady Sellards of the college of agriculture, who is giving a series of pork making demonstrations over the state, says that probably it is the most important step.

After the carcass has been cleaned, splitting down the center of the back bone and the removal of the leaf fat and of the head will assist in the chilling. A temperature of freezing or a little above is ideal for butchering.

If the temperature is much above freezing, it may be necessary to chill the carcass in a refrigerator or by the use of ice. It usually is sufficient to chill the carcass 24 to 48 hours.

In his demonstrations, Mr. Sellards shows how to cut up a carcass, and discusses the preservation of pork, and the making and preservation of sausage, and other important factors in home butchering.

He has held demonstrations in mason and farrard counties and will hold others in Meade, Carroll, Bourbon, Jessamine, Jefferson, Ohio, Shipson, Bullitt, Hancock and Ballard counties.

CLASS SOCIAL

The Intermediate Class of the Baptist Sunday School met with their teacher, Miss Margaret M. Brung, Tuesday evening for a little recreation and wholesome fun. Each one invited a friend.

The first part of the evening the girls entertained each other with music. They then went to the kitchen and popped corn, cracked nuts and cooked and pulled tuffy. Some had brought popcorn balls. All seemed to have a jolly time.

The following were present: Misses Helen Fox, Virginia and Lucile Nickell, Helen Price, Lorene Wells, Ella Ruth Childers, Dixie Canfield, Martha Emma, Ruth McKenzie, Ethel Marie Elam, Freda Cox, Martha Carolyn Blair.

Squareheads

The term squareheads was originally a seafaring expression, and is probably due to the square shape of the Teutonic skull, often accentuated by close-cropped hair.

SOCIETY ENTERTAINS

The Methodist Missionary Society entertained beautifully with a silver tea, at the home of Mrs. C. K. Stacy Thursday afternoon, Nov. 22. After singing "Best Be The Tie," and prayer by Rev. L. J. Sutherland, Mrs. Sutherland, the president, took charge and gave a very interesting talk, after which she introduced Mrs. J. C. Alter of Ezel.

Mrs. Alter with much ease and grace gave a very important talk on conditions in India. She gave as one of the great evils of India, the degradation of womanhood. Also child marriage as another great curse of Hinduism, and the caste system, which is observed more than the law of consequences. Needs of the Missionary field was very impressively brought to us, first, that the Christians in the homeland live deeply spiritual lives; that they keep the love of God warming their hearts.

During the social hour a number of interesting games were played and enjoyed by everyone. Tea and waffles were served to the following guests: Mesdames: Lizzie Kish, Ella McGuffee, J. C. Alter, Jake Wells, Roy Myers, Flora Carr, Goldie Dennis, and Mr. R. Mottley of Ezel; M. R. Elam, G. W. Leslie, and J. D. Whitaker of Ezel; Mrs. L. J. Sutherland, W. H. Childers, Earl Pifer, James Perry, Herbert Tracy, Mrs. N. C. Galloway, T. H. Caskey, D. R. Keeton, Ada Cochran, James Franklin, C. P. Henry, H. R. Stacy, Henry Cole, W. H. Stacy and Rev. L. J. Sutherland of West Liberty.

FEED FOR BIRDS

From actual field tests conducted by Iowa state college, under the supervision of Prof. Paul L. Erickson of the More Game Birds Foundation, it is quite evident that 30 percent of the birds may be shot and bagged without damaging the next year's crop of quail.

The shortage of food thru February and March kills more quail than all the hunters. You all know that something is wrong when you have brought thru a fine covey of quail mottled and next year you have no increase or possibly two instead of the one. What is the keystone that holds the arch? Come, more game.

We hope that the landowners who posted their holding this season and fought the hunters off, will not be inconsistent and self-contradicting, but carry on the good work by planting a small patch of rye to seed and fall over.

Don't you all feel rather concerned with this snow, where our feathered friends are going to get their food? Game has three outstanding features: food, shelter, and protection from hawks.

We wish to thank the people of Morgan county for going over the top in securing hunting licenses this season, which makes us assured in having the game and fish department supply us a good plant of fish and game birds in 1935. You see, it's like this, you plunk down a dollar for a license. That is not thrown away, but it is an investment and it also becomes the duty of the game and fish commission and wardens to see that you get your money's worth.

We have not made a thorough check of the communities that have secured licenses, but roughly speaking we'd place Ezel at the top and Wesley at the bottom. Of course this does not include West Liberty. You boys on route 40, from Grassy on out—thanks. GEO. S. OWSLEY, Sec., Morgan Co. Fish & Game Club.

LET US NOT BE FORGOTTEN

by Theoda Hart Stackhouse

Let us not be forgotten, we who wait
Sed-eyed and wistful, chained
Exiles from life by this mad
Jen of Fate.
Weary with lost dreams, we the living-dead.

Send us then some small token, only say
We are remembered, that somewhere hearts still yearn
At our long absence, as day
by weary day
Grow into months and years
ere we return.

We will fight on then smiling,
knowing life
If we be not forgotten, in the end
Is worth the lonely hours of pain and strife
While live abide, and we have yet a friend.

For the past two years Miss Stackhouse has been a shut-in. Her case is typical of thousands of tuberculous patients who are "taking the cure" in hundreds of sanatoria today. She had tuberculosis as a child, but had almost forgotten the experience in the excitement of acquiring an education, the hectic rush of newspaper work, and the absorption of writing fiction. She was suddenly felled by a winter when a second pneumonia struck her to enter a sanatorium in her native state of Oregon. Her medical history illustrates why tuberculosis associations with the help of Christ's mass service to impress upon the public. Protect children from tuberculosis.

"Lone Wolf's" Tracks in the Christmas Snow

There he stood—"The Lone Wolf!" Tucked down the hillside midst a snow-covered landscape, the moon and stars disclosing his tracks and shadowy figure upon the glistening sheet of ice-coated snow. He gazed hungrily toward a small group of houses huddled together at the foot of the hill, a faint light gleaming from their windows.

As Mary Louise was absorbed in turkey-dressing, cranberries, recipe books and Christmas apices, her thoughts wandered to this beautiful picture—"The Lone Wolf." For many years she had longed to possess it, but her husband did not approve, so she had done without it.

Mary Louise brushed away a tear as she thought of the coveted picture and then promptly forgot all about it in her loving efforts to make her family happy on Christmas.

When all was in readiness and the tree beautifully trimmed, Mary Louise called in the family for the Christmas celebration. How the children danced and tore about the toy-strewn living room! How dear old John absorbed himself in his brand-new smoking outfit!

Was Mary Louise to receive nothing? Turning, she saw John tucking up the most adorable bit of tinspoory he had ever seen—"The Lone Wolf!" Just the thing for that great empty wall space! "Merry Christmas, Mary," said John, as they all stood gazing upon "The Lone Wolf" with its tracks in the snow.—Alice B. Palmer

Christmas Radio Skit That "Went Over" Big

"Why don't you try a radio skit for XYZ?" Dick Hassel had written his mother, Grace.

Grace tried it and was as much surprised as anyone when it was accepted to be broadcast at seven o'clock, Christmas eve.

Mrs. Hassel had been greatly disappointed when Dick, for lack of finances, had to give up studying for the ministry and had gone to work in the big city. Recently he had written that he had a new job, a surprise, that he would tell Mother Grace and Father Jim about at Christmas.

Because Grace had always pictured Dick as the popular young minister, she featured the idea in her play, with the beautiful organist as his sweetheart.

Christmas eve Jim tuned in on XYZ. Promptly at seven came the theme song; then, to their amazement, a voice strangely familiar.

"This is station XYZ."

Then another voice: "Our play this evening, 'The New Minister,' is written by our announcer's mother, Mrs. Grace Hassel. Our popular announcer, Dick Hassel, will take the part of the minister."

"Of all things!" Grace exclaimed. "The young skit!"

"No wonder your skit went over so fast," Jim grinned.

"Now, listen! We're missing it," Grace happily admonished as the young minister's voice announced that the audience would join in singing "Joy to the World."—Florence Harris Wells.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS

THE carol was originally a joyous dance, a sign of liberation from the religious austerity of the Puritan era. Percy Dearham, writing in "The Oxford Book of Carols," says: "The carol, by forsaking the timeless contemplative melodies of the church, began the era of modern music, which throughout has been based on the dance."

Cheese Rind for Birds

In a recent discussion of the best way of feeding birds in the garden, one experimenter put forward the rind of a Stilton cheese as the supreme Christmas fare! Birds of many sorts, especially the robin, are greedily fond of it. They have a desire for fat and the cheese provides this in association with other virtues. If we feed birds for the sake of watching them as well as for comforting them, the rind, if preserved in more or less unbroken form, has the advantage that it cannot be carried away and attracts five or six species of bird if no more.—London Spectator.

As the yule-tide season is drawing near we should begin to manifest the Christ-like spirit, if we wish to have a merry Christmas. Why not share your joys, presents, and friendship with others, and see if we don't forget about our own happiness? The writer wishes each reader of the Courier a most charming Christmas spirit that will illumine, not only in their own lives but will help others to see life as they should. I also extend my deepest regards to the Courier publisher and his entire staff for their work and love they have given us correspondents this year. We wish you a merry Christmas you bet!

HELP!

DANIEL BOONE and KENTUCKY

by Dr. Charles M. Knapp

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY

When Daniel Boone was 18 his father, Squire Boone, decided to leave Pennsylvania and settle somewhere farther to the southward as so many others on the Pennsylvania frontier were doing. At that time Daniel had just about reached manhood, according to the thought of that period. He had had the usual training of the frontier boy, possessing an excellent knowledge of woodcraft, hunting and trapping, and how to live for weeks at a time in the wilderness, far from home.

In the use of the rifle and the knife and axe, in repairing traps and the usual knowledge of herding and farming on the frontier. In addition he possessed a knowledge of the rudiments of reading, writing and arithmetic. All this was added to a strong physique, a body trained in all the athletics of the border. So equipped Daniel Boone started southward in the year 1750.

Sometime in the autumn of 1751 Squire Boone and his family finally reached the Yadkin valley of North Carolina. There he located a claim at Buffalo Lick, where Dutchman's Creek enters the north fork of Yadkin. There Daniel resumed work on his father's farm and helped at his father's forge. But the country was alive with game particularly with buffalo, and Daniel was soon spending more time in hunting them on the farm or at the forge. Unfortunately he found it more profitable to shoot good prices were paid for furs and hides at the market towns, such as Salisbury, which was about 20 miles away.

When the Boones reached North Carolina the settlers were still on good terms with the Catawba Indians about 60 miles distant and with the Cherokee somewhat farther to the west and the Shawnees, frequently southwest. But northern traders, who had taken up claims on the old war path of the marauders. Then Daniel Boone probably obtained his first real experience in Indian warfare.

In 1751 the entire American border from the Yadkin to the St. Lawrence in the far north became deeply concerned with the Indian question. In the Ohio valley for some years, French and English fur traders had carried on a keen rivalry for the Indian trade, each trying to supplant the other. As early as 1718 backwoods from Virginia had made a small settlement on the New River, just west of the Alleghenies. In the next year two adventurous Virginians, who marked out land claims in Kentucky and Tennessee. In 1750 the Land Company was organized for term for trading and colonization by wealthy Virginians, among whom were two brothers of George Washington. Meanwhile the French were active too, in exploring and developing plans for holding the Ohio valley. In 1751 plans were ready for the construction of a small fort at the forks of the Ohio, where Pittsburg now stands, which was the key to the control of the whole valley, at least on the east. Obviously a crisis was thus approaching for the western frontier.

TO TAKE FARM CENSUS

Farm census headquarters for the sixth Census District of Kentucky have been established at Postoffice Building, Ashland, according to an announcement by S. M. Estlin, district census supervisor. This district includes the counties of Brecken, Mason, Robertson, Fleming, Lewis, Green up, Boyd, Carter, Rowan, Bath, Nicholas, Montgomery, Powell, Meade, Wolf, Breathitt, Morgan, Lawrence, Elliot, Harrison.

The actual work of taking the census is scheduled to begin Jan. 2, 1935.

William L. Austin, Director, Bureau of the Census, urges all farmers and ranchers who have not received a sample copy of the schedule to procure one at the earliest possible moment so that they may give careful study to the questions and be prepared to give full and accurate information when the enumerator calls. Copies may be obtained by writing to your district supervisor.

The schedule is divided into eight basic sections comprising of one hundred questions covering practically every phase of the agricultural industry, of course, every farmer will not have to answer all of these questions, only those pertaining to his particular lines of activity. The questions will cover the calendar year 1934.

The enumerators will make inquiry as to farm tenure; farm acreage, which includes all crop land, all pasture land and all farm woodland; the total value of the farm; acreage and yield of each of the principal crops and vegetables; the number of trees and yield of the principal fruits and nuts; number and value of each class of livestock; poultry and eggs; and farm population.

Director Austin has declared that this is the most significant farm enumeration since the inception of national statistics in 1840, and he earnestly requests the cooperation of all farmers and ranches to the end that complete and accurate statistics may be procured and tabulated at the earliest possible moment. The unprecedented destruction of crops and livestock caused by the drought and the many changes which have occurred in farms and ranches and in the utilization of land due to the depression of the past few years make it imperative that farm statistics be available as soon as possible. If agriculture is to be assisted in going forward with other industries.

The Director desires to call attention to the Section of the Fifteenth Census Act, approved June 18, 1921, which makes it unlawful for any person to refuse to answer questions of the Census schedule:

"Sec. 3. That it shall be the duty of all persons over eighteen years of age, when requested by the Director of the Census, or by any supervisor, enumerator, or special agent, or other employee of the Census Office, acting under the instructions of the said director, to answer correctly, to the best of their knowledge, all questions on the census schedules applying to themselves and to the families to which they belong or are related, and to the farm or farms of which they or their families are the occupants; and any person over eighteen years of age who, under the conditions heretofore stated, shall refuse or wilfully neglect to answer any of these questions, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding $100 or be imprisoned not exceeding sixty days, or both, and any such person who shall wilfully give answers that are false shall be fined not exceeding $500 or be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or both...."
